Tuberculosis (TB) is a disease caused by germs that are spread from person to person through the air. TB usually affects the lungs, but it can also affect other parts of the body, such as the brain, the kidneys, or the spine. Not everyone infected with TB germs becomes sick. As a result, two TB-related conditions exist: latent TB infection (or inactive TB) and TB disease. If not treated properly, TB disease can be fatal.

Malaria is a serious disease caused by a parasite that infects a certain type of mosquito. Usually, people get malaria by being bitten by an infective mosquito. Malaria is not spread from person-to-person like a cold or the flu, and it cannot be sexually transmitted. The U.S. reports about 2,000 cases of malaria each year. Most of these cases are in people traveling to or from areas where malaria transmission occurs.
